DVC issues an update on water management activities

Throughout the year, water is released from DVC dams for various purposes such as irrigation (for 2 crops in West Bengal), municipalities and industries. All such releases are within the limit of 23,000 cusecs (cubic-feet per second) which are not flood releases, but are made to fulfill the diverse, continuous and critical requirements of the people in the DVC command area. The release of water from DVC dams is carried out only upon the instruction of the 'Dammed off-reservoir Regulator Committee' (DVRRC), headed by Member (R&M), Central Water Commission (CWC), New Delhi, with Members in the rank of Chief Engineers from Govt. of West Bengal, Govt. of Jharkhand & DVC. All release advisories are issued by the Member Secretary of this Committee, who is an officer of the CWC, posted at Mahon, DVC. It is only an operator of the dams and not authorized to decide on its own any release from Mahon & Panchet Dams. Releases above 23,000 cusecs are only considered as flood releases. Such releases are made by DVC on the advice of DVRRC, after the issuance of flood warning messages to all concerned officials of the Govt. of West Bengal well in advance. Flood warning messages are also displayed in the DVC web site (www.dvc.gov.in) round the clock with all details of quantity & time of arrival of flood water in Lower Damodar area.

Admissions to Dayananda Sagar Institutions now open through online mode

Bengaluru based Dayananda Sagar Institutions, which adopted the online mode due to the Covid-19 pandemic, are now successful in holding of classes, conduct examinations, publish results and hand over the mark sheets to its students within the time lines of the campus academic calendar. This move also made it possible for the students in the final year to catch up with the placement cycle as also helping students in sticking to their plans adhering to time schedules of overseas' universities. Having seen enormous success in embracing technology in its academic practices DSA has opened its admission process by adopting the online mode. This opportunity enables students to use the Internet and the Whatsapp mode to complete the admission process; eliminating the need for parents and prospective students from physically visiting the campus offices. In addition parents and students can benefit from counseling on a one to one by specialist faculty and also opt for the virtual campus tour to get a first hand feel of the infrastructure and other facilities. DSI colleges will deliver lessons in the new academic year by using the online mode, which practice would be in vogue until the Government announces new guidelines. The DSI management had to adopt these measures to ensure safety of the life and health of its students and faculty while moving on with the academic delivery. Students' parents and corporates that hire large number of students passing out of the DSI Colleges have expressed immense satisfaction with these moves of the DSI management as a timely response to the pandemic crisis.
