

July 8, 2008

Based on the improving rail shipment service levels experienced in the past few weeks, effective immediately, General Chemical will be removing its force majeure notification for all railcar and truck transload terminal shipments which were impacted by the heavy mid-western floods.

Thank you very much for your patience and understanding during this period.